

BRIGHAM STREET HOUSE IS ROBBED

Burglars Enter Home of J. A. Pollock and Secure Much Valuable Booty.

Working with an adeptness that left no trace of their presence, and furnished absolutely no clue, burglars entered the residence of J. A. Pollock at No. 115 Brigham street yesterday afternoon and looted the place of jewelry valued at over $500. The burglary was performed in broad daylight while children of the neighbors played about the steps of the Pollock residence. The Pollocks had gone for an outing and did not return until late in the evening. As soon as the robbery was discovered the sheriff's office and police headquarters were notified.

It was some time after the family had returned home before the burglary was discovered, the house being undisturbed, and it being plainly evident that the thieves were familiar with the premises. Mr. Pollock first found that two diamond shirt studs were missing and a little later found that his wife's gold watch was missing. Other jewelry then discovered to have been taken were a black opal scarf pin and a ruby scarf pin. The watch taken was set with a small diamond.

It is supposed that the burglars entered the residence by means of a pass key, there being no marks to show that any of the windows had been opened. Neighbors on either side stated that they had not seen any person of suspicious character about the premises.

It is the theory of Mr. Pollock that some one was watching the house when the family left earlier in the day and that they secured an entry by using skeleton keys. They had taken considerable time in the search of the premises and had found the jewelry in a drawer of a dresser. Until a late hour last night neither the sheriff's office nor the police had made an arrest in connection with the case.

ART OF ORIENTAL RUG EXPLAINED TO WOMEN

Weavers Peers of Omar Khayam and Other Poets, Says the Expert.

Rugmaking was illustrated at the Ladies' Literary club yesterday afternoon by Thomas H. Kulluljan. Rugs 800 years old and costly beyond reason were shown. Kulluljan told the first chapter of Syrian history of genuine Oriental creations and of imitations. Oriental art, he said, finds expression in rugmaking. The weavers of the great rugs of history were equal with great painters and poets.

Faking of rugs is a profitable business, according to Kulluljan, he said he knew of instances where as high as $25,000 had been paid by the gullible rich for rugs worth less than $100.

Kulluljan served tea to his audience, explaining the methods of oriental steeping, which brings out the rich, delicious qualities.

DID URCHIN HAVE AN EYE FOR WORKS OF ART?

Did a dirty-faced urchin who was selling celery from an old baby carriage have an eye for the fine arts? This is the question that Mrs. Ann Holley Brown, 24 North Sixth street, yesterday asked the members of the Ladies' Literary club. She was engaged in cleaning some rooms of her residence, she placed six valuable pictures in the rear veranda. A boy selling celery passed that way shortly afterwards, and Mrs. Brown said that he looked with wistful eyes towards the pictures. Her attention was attracted to another part of the house for a short time, and when she returned to the veranda the pictures had disappeared. The case has been reported to the police, but no arrest has been made.

SIDE LIGHTS ON SYRIAN LIFE SHOWN IN TRIAL

Charles Venis was fined $30 in police court yesterday, and Elmer Mattouk, Charles Karem and Ephraim Shawool were fined $15 each on charges of battery, and thus ended the first chapter of Syrian disturbance. E. H. Marine, 73 West Second street, was the prosecuting witness and he alleged that the Syrians administered a severe beating to him Oct. 1.

The case has occupied three days of the court's time, and in that interim a great deal has been learned of the inner life of the Syrian colony of Salt Lake. It has been shown principally, however, that the Syrians are a peaceable sort, and this is their first round with the police court mill.

nearest restaurant for a refreshing cup of lovely, steaming coffee. After being a few days in a city, I have discovered where the best coffee is served, and at Schramm-Johnson's it is delicious.

Visits Drug Store.

Yesterday I happened in there at about five minutes to 12, and I had to wait my turn, and did so cheerfully. Judging by the crowd which I found there, there are many coffee drinkers in Salt Lake, and they appreciate good coffee.

There are two very good reasons why the coffee at this store is so delicious. It took me two days to discover the reasons. First, it is made from the right kind of coffee, and second, it is made right. Have you ever watched the expert white-clad clerks at the soda fountain make it? Eager to learn the secret of their success in the art, I watched one of these busy chaps one day prepare a potful.

Inside the pretty nickel receptacle was a bag containing the coffee, which was ground almost to dust. Boiling water was poured through it. "Oh," I ejaculated aloud. "That's a percolator, isn't it?" The young gentleman regarded me with some surprise. "No, we filter our coffee," was the rejoinder. "That's what gives it such a pleasant taste and such a fragrant aroma."

I sipped the first cup in appreciative silence, my mind busy with a plan for discovering the brand of coffee, and how to get some of it. When I was drinking the second cup, I concluded to try and find out from the clerk.

"Would you mind telling me what kind of coffee this is?" I asked. "Mandehling Java and Mocha," was the reply, to my delight and surprise. "I wish I knew where I could buy it," I remarked.

"We sell it," he said, in a puzzled tone, as though he thought I ought to have known. "It comes in one, two, three and five-pound—"

"Give me five pounds," I demanded, abruptly interrupting him. He laughed outright, and then apologized. "You're just like all the rest," he said, good-humoredly. "We have an immense trade on this coffee, in the packages as well as at the fountain here."

Dolly Meets Nice Chap.

He was a very nice chap, and chatted pleasantly. "We serve the coffee at all four of our stores," he said. "You ought to go in any one of them from 11:30 to 2 o'clock on week days. You have to wait your turn to get a cup."

I found that out at the No. 1 store yesterday, as I have many things. There was a perfect throng about the handsome embellished fountain, which I noticed was made of pure onyx, and which he touched the ceiling. He has also discovered that at Schramm-Johnson's one gets the loveliest ice cream, with pure flavorings and fruits which they put up themselves. When eating one of their sundae one glistens at the remembrance of the preserve closet in mother's home, and how good the fruit in the forbidden jars tasted when one was a wee kiddie.

In the No. 1 store, at First South and Main streets, where the cars stop, one can get the most delicious candy that ever gladdened the feminine heart, or masculinized the male. The matter of that, it is "Guth" candy and comes from New York. It tastes as though it were made of sugar and makes one reminiscent of Broadway, with its glittering lights and smartly dressed throngs. If I was surprised to buy a big five-pound package of coffee at the No. 1 store, I was even more amazed to see a magnificent line of Cross leather goods at the No. 4 store. This is the finest line in the world and is familiar to the London and Paris shopper as it is to Americans. "Cross" leather goods, which are a London product, mean perfection in leather.

Ladies will find the daintiest perfumes and powders at these four stores and will be treated with special courtesy. For the accommodation of the public in general a postal station is located at each store.

Dolly Meets Mr. Grant.

Yesterday morning I had the pleasure of meeting the genial and charming Mr. Grant, manager of the Colonial theatre. I had just stepped from my automobile at Second South and Main, when I met him. He was standing there with another gentleman, who, upon presentation proved to be Mr. Grant. He is a charming man, with a most likable personality.

"I will recognize you sure, when you visit the theatre Saturday," he said, laughing. "I won't look as I do now," I returned. At Schramm-Johnson's corner, shortly after 12 noon, yesterday, I found an immense throng awaiting me.

I first entered Schramm-Johnson's, but remained inside but a few seconds. Returning, I took my stand with a number of other ladies who stood at the corner, between the two entrances. Among the ladies standing there was a small, plump woman dressed in green, and a lady wearing a long black fur coat and a black hat.

Avoid Taking Cold

If people would only use ordinary precautions, the toll of disease and death directly traceable to neglected colds would not be nearly so heavy. Learn to breathe properly—don't expose the person needlessly to sudden changes of temperature, dampness and draughts. Get busy with the first sneeze and check a cold before it reaches the lungs. A simple remedy, and one that is highly recommended, is made by mixing two ounces of Oliveine, a half ounce of Virgin Oil of Pine compound pure and eight ounces of pure Whisky. You can buy these in any good drug store and easily mix them in a large bottle. It is claimed by the Leach Chemical Co. of Cincinnati, who prepare the genuine Virgin Oil of Pine compound pure, that a teaspoonful of this mixture, four times a day, will break up a cold in twenty-four hours, and cure any cough that is curable.

FUNERAL NOTICES.

Just then No. 428 appeared and, when requested to salute the young lady, replied, "I did so a few minutes ago, and it isn't she."

Policeman No. 23 was very busy and appeared real good-natured about it. Policeman No. 26 was making caustic remarks to a nice gentlemanly looking meek-looking man, and I wondered if he felt ill or something. He had a copy of The Herald-Republican in his hand, and had his eyes open for Dolly all right.

A nice looking chap in a grayish suit was working hard to capture me. Salt Lake folks are beginning to exhibit a great deal of determination, and if their enthusiasm keeps up this contest will be real short. As usual, the crowd was well behaved and orderly, and showed lots of consideration for each other. There were a great many ladies on hand, all of whom were courteously treated.

Dolly Leaves Crowd.

In leaving the crowd, I kept closely in the wake of three ladies, following them to the rear veranda.

POLICE COURT CASES.

Jap Accused of Using Fork as Weapon Is Bound Over.

In the case of H. F. Robinson, charged with violating the city liquor license law, trial was set for police court yesterday afternoon for Nov. 16.

The Jensen Creamery company will be given a hearing in police court Tuesday morning on the charge of violating the pure food ordinance.

Ko Kuno, a Jap charged with using a fork as a weapon against another Jap, has been bound over to the district court on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon.

H. C. Jones, charged with petit larceny, will be given time for pleading in police court Monday. It is alleged that Jones took an overcoat from a rack in a Main street cafe and that he was arrested while wearing the coat.

HORSE IN CELLAR HAS A NICE LONG REST

One of the delivery horses of the Salt Lake Electric Supply company is taking a nice long rest in the cellar of the building in which he is kept. Tuesday he has been imprisoned in a basement hole in the rear of the Culmer block, between Main and State streets, and means of rescuing him from his predicament has yet been discovered. The horse eats regularly and seems to be enjoying life. The company needs the horse, but the owner of the cellar objects to an excavation being made, and no other method has been found to release the animal.
